After-School Program Seeks Mentors

Hempstead – Do you have a talent? Could you teach someone to quilt, crochet, sew, pitch washers, throw horseshoes, or fish? These are some of the favorite past times that are slipping away and becoming a lost art. Are you interested in passing along your knowledge to the next generation?

The After-School Program at Hempstead Independent School District is seeking mentors to share their talents with students. The after-school program has a one hour session each day for four sessions per week. They are looking for volunteers to teach the students simple sewing, quilting, crochet, the art of fishing, horseshoe pitching, washer pitching, woodworking/crafts, photography, gardening, nutrition/cooking, scrap booking, calligraphy, and more. If you have one hour a week or four hours a week, contact Jena Qualls at (979) 826-2530.

The After-School Program will begin on Monday, August 28. If you are interested in working with the students at Hempstead ISD, call today.
